

A day in the life

Characters: protagonist- me! (Moriah) antagonist - unpredictable health situations

Setting: several days before solo and ensemble. Moriah's senior year. Archbold.

Plot:

Preliminary situation : introduce protagonist (Moriah) and learn about her impending solo and ensemble performances.

Initial incident: Moriah rehearses her pieces with her mother. The rehearsal goes well, but Moriah still has a lot of work to do only has a few days left.

Rising action: Moriah goes to school the next morning and in each class is given a large amount of homework. Moriah is overwhelmed by the huge amount of homework she is given, and doesn't know how to practice for her performance. Moriah falls asleep completing her homework and wakes up late for school the next morning. As a result of her falling asleep she didn't get to practice her Solo and Ensemble performances. Moriah used her study hall to talk through her pieces during school the next day. Moriah goes home on Friday evening and goes to bed immediately because she knows she needs sleep to be in tip top shape.

Climax: Moriah gets up the next morning and heads over to the solo and ensemble venue. Warming up goes well, and she heads over to the performance room to perform. The moment before Moriah begins to sing she tells herself get dizzy and before she can do anything about it the world goes black.

Falling Action: Moriah wakes up to her mother fanning her face looking concerned. Moriah, much to her family's concern, rests for a bit and then returns to the performance and sings through her song.

Resolution: Moriah sits waiting for her score and receives a I. She learns that no matter how much you practice you cannot always prepare for
